Leader in Workwear Introduces New Outerwear Garment Featuring Revolutionary Ripstop Fabric

GREENSBORO, N.C. (December 20, 2007) – Building upon its impressive collection of products designed to meet the demands of men who work long, hard hours, RIGGS WORKWEAR® by Wrangler® is expanding its construction-grade ripstop offering for Spring 2008. The new Ripstop Utility Vest is the first RIGGS WORKWEAR garment in its category to feature the brand's innovative ripstop fabric.

RIGGS WORKWEAR ripstop fabric is specially engineered to provide superior protection in harsh working environments. This snag-resistant 100 percent cotton fabric provides toughness in a medium (10 oz.) weight material that has proven to be as comfortable as it is strong.

The new Ripstop Utility Vest combines durability and functionality, boasting front multitool pockets with velcro closure, a zippered front chest cell phone pocket and front cargo pockets with side entry lined hand warmer pockets. The zip entry has a wind flap, and a quilted lining provides added warmth and protection.

“Our consumers demand high-quality garments that work as hard as they do, and the new Ripstop Utility Vest provides the comfort and durability they’ve come to expect from RIGGS WORKWEAR” said Jerry Guiliano, merchandising manager, Wrangler Outdoor Functional Brands. “We understand the needs of real working men, and consistently strive to develop superior garments that provide a higher level of comfort, toughness and utility than anything else on the market.”

Revolutionizing professional-grade work wear since its launch in 2003, RIGGS WORKWEAR is designed to fulfill a single purpose: to offer hardworking men a superior line of apparel for everyday wear. Set apart by designed-for-the-job details and innovative fabrics and fits, the RIGGS WORKWEAR collection of products help men work harder, longer and more comfortably than ever before.
